

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Precyse Solutions' Servais Selected to Speak at Computer-Assisted Coding Software Workshop

Wayne, PA, August 23, 2006 - Precyse Solutions announced today that Cheryl Servais, MPH, RHIA, Vice President Compliance and Privacy Officer, has been selected to speak at the upcoming Computer-Assisted Coding Software Standards Workshop on September 6-8 in Arlington, Virginia. The workshop is sponsored by the American Health Information Management Association (AHIMA) and its Foundation on Research and Education (FORE) and will focus on recommendations for standards for computer-assisted coding (CAC) software.

This workshop will examine current software development and how it impacts functional integrity using software industry and government processes designed to ensure the quality of high-value software. Participants will help to develop recommendations for CAC software standards where automated tools are used to capture discrete coded data that can be mutually understood and shared for multiple uses within the healthcare industry.

“There is tremendous value in work groups such as this sponsored by the AHIMA in leading the direction of software that will help support the use and acceptance of automated tools within the HIM industry,” Jeff Levitt, founder, Chairman, and CEO of Precyse Solutions said. “Cheryl Servais has been a thought leader in the industry and has long been an asset to our Precyse Solutions clients. Through workshops such as this, she can share her expertise with a wider audience.”
